Allied Images relocates to new premises

Allied Images, distributors of large format scanning solutions, has relocated to new custom-designed premises in Northampton. The new premises have been designed to provide not only a new demonstration suite and a convenient location for training and meeting customers but also storage and distribution.

After an extensive search to find suitable offices with associated demonstration, storage and loading/unloading facilities, premises were found on Moulton Park close to the current offices. The new premises are convenient for major transport routes – J15A on M1 is only 15 minutes distant – and close to Colortrac, our scanner manufacturer, who are based in St Ives, near Cambridge. Allied Images markets and distributes the Colortrac range of large format scanners in the UK and Ireland, so good access to transport routes will greatly benefit our customers.

“The premises’ interior has been completely rebuilt to our specification,” said Steve Morin, Managing Director. “The new demonstration suite will allow us to lay out the latest large-format scanning and printing equipment and allow for future expansion.”

Pauline Birlson, Finance Director, commented “The past twelve months have created some difficulties for our customers and staff. The introduction of Colortrac SmartLF scanners has greatly increased the number of scanners we ship each month. So, as the level of business has grown we have had occasional difficulty in storing an adequate number of scanners to support demand. The facilities at the new premises will greatly improve the logistics of the large format scanners that are our stock-in-trade.”
